

Michelle Sullivan

2017 IHFDA Conference Speaker

Michelle is currently the Director of Labor Relations at Michigan Medicine, where she leads a Labor Relations team that serves a leading academic medical center with over 26,000 employees. She is responsible for ensuring a working environment conducive to labor-management harmony through the creation, implementation and maintenance of equitable policies and procedures and programs designed to allow for effective interest based problem solving. In addition, she serves as chief negotiator for all Michigan Medicine collective bargaining agreements. She began her career as a high school teacher before attending law school at the University of Dayton School of Law. Following law school, she worked as an attorney in private practice for approximately 17 years at Allotta Farley Co. with a diverse labor and employment practice, including the representation of unions for law enforcement officers and firefighters at approximately 30 departments in Northwest Ohio.
